INSTRUCTORS:

Melanie Herzog Ph.D. is Professor of Art History and her classes on understanding and analyzing visual art in relation to the times and social contexts in which it was made will focus on preparing the class for the many rich experiences in galleries and museums during our stay in London, one of the great centers of the art world.

Jeanne Leep Ph.D. is Professor of Theater and will teach theatre from a performance perspective, including elements of script analysis, theatre design, and a cultural history of theatre, as well as specific readings geared to help students understand and fully appreciate the performances we will see while in London.

Ian Davies Ph.D. is Professor of Spanish and, as a native of London, England, will teach the social and cultural history of the city including multiculturalism and popular culture, together with some practical advice for traveling around and daily living.

All instructors will explore the intersections of art, theater and culture, in an engaged, student-centered and academically rigorous framework.
